London Youth Games

Parliament Hill

Saturday 20th November

Iford youngsters were out in force at the London Youth Games on Saturday, competing for various London Boroughs.

Resolute Ryder's racing resolve saw him compete after not making training on Thursday but bravely wanting to still race with no power in his legs. He managed to finish a credible 183rd in the U13 age category.

Sofia Crane, a member of the newly formed development squad, represented Redbridge and was running in her first competitive race (u11). She ran strongly for 145th place.

In the U15s category Samuel Crane, running for Redbridge, came through the field to finish 88th. He was pleased with his position.

The outstanding performance of the day saw Joseph Grange representing Havering win bronze. After being pushed over at the start and being one of the last runners to make it to the top of the famous first hill (Parliament hill), he battled hard to eventually catch the leaders. As Joseph slipped his way into 2nd spot, it was unfortunately too little too late and he was out-sprinted on the last bend to finish a very commendable 3rd place, securing him a podium finish position in a championship race.

In the U17s category we had Ronan Edwards who got out well, tackling the iconic hills strongly. He lost a few places on the second lap, pulling a few back on the downhill run into the finish to come 40th out of 117, his best London Youth Games result yet.
